Captain Andrew’s Column

Today we are celebrating Self Denial? That may sound strange but it is true. We are taking time today to think about people and situations around the world, situations and people we’ve seen in the films we looked at over the last few weeks. (Link to videos www.salvationist.org.uk/resources/key-dates/self-denial-2023).

Hopefully we’ve sensed some connection with what has been reported and will respond accordingly. Around the world members of the SA are living right in the middle of the people they are working with. They choose (feel they must) live where their people are, so that their lives ‘openly profess his name’ they are clearly incarnational and live the lives of the people they are trying to help. By giving in our self-denial appeal we are in some way giving incarnationally right into those situations that need support, money, prayer and with that they can keep professing His name. We are so fortunate even though we moan about prices going up, salad not being available when we want it. Let’s reflect on those areas we’ve seen in our Self Denial campaign and react as God prompts us.
