In the UK, the celebration was founded by Age Concern and it has been celebrated on the first Sunday in October since 2008. The USA was one of the first to introduce the day in 1979, across the world it is celebrated on different dates. Each of us was told the gospel message and taught about the faith by someone else, for most of us here it was our parents and grandparents. Let us make today a time of giving thanks for all those who have contributed to our coming to faith and spiritual growth. I often hear people talking about what they are going to leave their families in the way of possessions and investments but rarely hear them mention anything about their spiritual legacy. When the money is used up and possessions worn out what lasting influence will we leave behind? Psalm 78:4 We will not hide them from their descendants; we will tell the next generation the praiseworthy deeds of the LORD his power, and the wonders he has done.
